On Friday night last, Mr. William Gass, (son of Mr. Patrick Gass, sole survivor of the Lewis and Clarke ex-pedition,) was drowned at the head of Mingo Island, in the Ohio river, near Wellsburg. He had been at the Burgettatown, Pa., fair, and came that evening to Steubenville on the Panhan-dle Raliroad. After dark, in company with a comrade, he procured a small akiff or "duggy," and started for Wellsburg on the river. When at the head of the Island, it was discovered that the boat was rapidly sink-ing, and an effort was made to reach the Virginia shore. Before doing so, how. ever, Mr. Gassjumped into the river and attempted to swin ashore. His attempt was unsuccessful, and in it he was drowned—the weight of his clothes and the current proving too much for him. An effort has been made to recover the body—all of Saturday and Sunday hav-ing been spent in dragging for it with-
